Training Of Drivers Gets Lions Support

The Murray Lions Club officially went on record last night as supporting proposed legislation to broaden driver education programs in Kentucky High Schools. The membership gave its unanimous approval of the club's regular meeting held at the Murray Women's Club House.

Members of the club's regular meeting were given following the club program for the evening, a safety talk presented by three high school students under the direction of Mrs. Don Keller. Students participating were Beth Garrison, Gayle Rogers, and Martha Hayes. Mrs. Keller is chairman of the Traffic Safety Committee of the Murray Women's Club.

The talk pointed out there are two and one-half million new licensed drivers each year and that one-fifth of all drivers in the nation are between the ages of 16-25. It also noted that one third of all accidents involving death were by drivers under 25. It is estimated by 1970 that half of the nation's drivers will be from 16 to 25 years of age.

Purposely the talk demonstrated the significant contribution driver education has made in the reduction of traffic accidents. Younger drivers with the benefit of (Continued on Page Six)

Seen & Heard Around MURRAY

The KKK has announced that it has formed a youth movement similar to the Boy Scouts. Awards will be given for camping, character building and "service to the community" for loyalty to God and country, flag and Constitution.

As well as we can remember the Hitler Youth was a youth movement. Awards were given for camping, character building and for loyalty to country, flag and Constitution.

The Nazis left God out of their program because they did not want Him in it, and we don't believe the KKK can include Him either without displaying utter hypocrisy.

Two Starlings apparently all set to build a nest in that corner over the harness shop door across the street. They have built there for several years. The only way to get in is to fly right in at the end of the cornice. Last year we saw the birds as they fed their young. They would make several passes at the entrance before they were successful.

Miss Ellen Watson of Lynn Grove is Red Cross Youth Leader for the county.

If you have ever wondered what animal can adapt itself to almost any climate better than any other animal, the answer is man. Human beings can live in almost any climate while there are many animals which will die if removed from their habitat. Man has learned to live practically all over this earth.

There is quite an argument in progress over whether Kentucky should have daylight saving time or continue on standard time.

If the state remains on standard time, it will be the only state in the fifty states of the Union to be going on daylight time just for this reason, just for the sake of consistency alone.

There are times in confusion and this is one of them.

Capture Of Ship Is Act War, Rusk

By DARRELL GARWOOD
WASHINGTON, D.C. — Secretary of State Dean Rusk said today the North Korean seizure of the USS Pueblo could be considered "an act of war." Diplomatic efforts to obtain the ship's return have thus far failed.

A top administration official said the Soviet Union had refused to intervene with North Korea in an effort to secure the release of the U.S. intelligence ship and its 83 men.

The White House confirmed that diplomatic efforts to free the Pueblo had been unsuccessful.

Rusk declined to speculate on what steps the United States might take if efforts to obtain the ship's release by peaceful means continue to meet no success. But he told reporters:

"My strong advice to North Korea is to end it. There have been enough of these incidents and they have come out of North Korea. North Korea would be well advised to pull back here, stop this kind of activity, and decide to live in peace with its neighbors."

An official who asked to remain anonymous said the response of the Soviet government to a U.S. request that it use Russian good offices to free the Pueblo and its 83 men had not been satisfactory.

Asked whether this meant the Kremlin had refused even to pass on to the North Koreans the American request to release the ship, the official said "I see no evidence that they relayed this request."

The North Korean government, meanwhile, charged in a radio broadcast that the ship's skipper, Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher, had admitted violating North Korea's (Continued on Page Six)

Twenty-one school districts were represented at the workshop.

Leonard Press, Executive Director of the Kentucky ETV Authority, Charles B. Klasek, Educational Director of the Kentucky ETV Authority, and Ronald B. Stewart, Engineering Director for the KETV Authority discussed costs and equipment which would be required at the local level for school districts to equip their buildings to receive KETV in September, 1968, when the program is scheduled to begin. No charge will be made to local districts for the KETV program or the printed instructional materials each teacher must have in order to fully utilize ETV instruction in the classroom.

In addition, workshop participants reviewed many sample programmed lesson series.

Gain Of $8 Million Is Shown By County Banks In Past Year

Calloway County banks showed resources amounting to over $55 million dollars according to published bank statements. The figures reflected the status at the close of business on December 30, 1967.

Resources at the close of business on December 31, 1966 amounted to $47,891,897.88 while the total resources for all three county banks at the close of business on December 30, 1967 amounted to $55,512,316.19. This reflects a gain of about $8 million dollars.

The Peoples Bank showed an increase in resources from December 31, 1966 of $17,483,290.42 to the December figure on December 30, 1967 of $30,762,571.37.

The Dees Bank of Hazel showed resources as of December 31, 1966 of $3,109,469.96, while on December 30, 1967 resources amounted to $5,722,665.71.

Calloway County banks are well known over the state of Kentucky and rank high in banking circles.

It is generally considered that local banks have presented a great boost to the economy of this area with their lending policies.

The Bank of Murray serves its customers with the main bank at Fourth and Main and with its drive-in branch at Fifth and Poplar.

The Peoples Bank main branch is at Fifth and Main with a drive-in branch on South 12th Street and TV drive-in branch at Sixth and Main.

Glen Doran has served as executive officer of the Peoples Bank for the past twenty years, during which time the bank's resources have grown from $1,879,382.42 to its present over $30 million.

Joe Dick is the executive officer of the Bank of Murray, assuming this post last July 1. The Bank of Murray's resources twenty years ago, at the close of business in December 1947 amounted to $638,882.69 and it has grown to the most recently reported figure of over $31 million.

All three of the banks in Calloway County are new and modern. The Dees Bank of Hazel was reconstructed completely in recent years. The Peoples Bank has been expanded and modernized and the Bank of Murray has undergone a complete remodeling and expansion.

The TV branch bank of the Peoples Bank is very new in this area and is so designed that customers may be served in their automobiles although they are a block away from the main bank. Customers and tellers are connected by television and intercom.

One of the most prominent men in banking circles in Calloway County and the state passed away last year when George Hart died in California following surgery. Mr. Hart piloted the Bank of Murray for nearly thirty-five years.

$207,000 Is Awarded In Student Loans

Murray State University will award $207,000 to about 725 students on the National Defense Student Loan Program for the spring semester, according to Johnny McDougal, coordinator of student financial aid.

This is the largest loan volume ever for a spring term.

Mr. McDougal said that even this total available many eligible students could not be placed on the program because of limited funds. Awards are based primarily on financial need and academic performance.

Students applying for National Defense Student Loans, but not receiving the spring loans, were furnished information on another loan program.

Additional awards will not be available on the National Defense Loan Program until June 1.

All students wishing to apply for summer term loans must have applications in the student financial aid office no later than March 1. Applications for the fall semester of 1968 must be in the office by May 1, Mr. McDougal said.

Information about the program may be obtained from the student financial aid office, room 317, Murray State administration building.

Artillery Hits Marines As Red Buildup Is Seen

By EUGENE V. RISHER
SAIGON 176 — North Vietnamese troops hit the mountain-rimmed U.S. Marine garrison at Khe Sanh with a massive artillery barrage tonight for the first time.

The heavy shells struck as military spokesmen reported the Communists probing for their biggest offensive of the war.

U.S. spokesmen said the Communist offensive of up to 40,000 men appeared to be aimed at capturing the two northernmost provinces of South Vietnam and driving the Americans to the negotiating table.

They had warned the offensive could start before Monday and the true meaning was, the Chinese new year.

The Communists had 1968 mortars and rockets against the Khe Sanh positions but a spokesman said they used 150 millimeter about six-inch artillery for the first time and hit the American positions from the heights with 150 rounds.

An Khe, expected to bear the brunt of the assault, is 12 miles below the Demilitarized Zone DMZ and four miles from the Laos border. The Communists have a total of four divisions and elements of a fifth along the line, including the two in South Vietnam, the spokesman said, but the main force is near An Khe.

Income Tax

Questions & Answers

Q — I was just billed $20 for not paying an estimated tax. Is this something new? It never happened to me before.

A — The requirements for filing estimated tax declarations and paying quarterly installments are not new. However, with the automatic data processing system IRS can now check all returns to see whether taxpayers have made estimated tax payments when required to do so.

Penalties are imposed when a taxpayer does not make the quarterly payments of estimated tax required. To avoid these penalties in the future, check the requirements on the estimated tax when you file your return.

Q — Where can I get tax forms?

A — Most banks and post offices have copies of the tax forms and schedules most frequently used. Local offices of IRS also have them in stock or you can send a post card to your district director asking for the forms you need.

Q — My leg is in a cast and I have to take a cab to work. Is this deductible as a medical expense?

A — No. Transportation expenses to and from work are considered personal expenses and are not deductible. Transportation costs to the hospital or to a doctor for treatment of your leg are deductible as medical expenses, however. Check your Form 1040 instructions on how to handle these expenses.

Q — How can I be sure the person I pick to prepare my tax return is reliable?

A — Here are a few things to look for:

1. Avoid the man who "guarantees" you a refund.
2. Be on guard if he suggests that the refund be sent to his address.
3. Never sign a blank tax form.
4. Don't sign a form that has been prepared in pencil; the figures could be easily changed.
5. Ask the advisor to sign the return he has prepared. Remember that when someone helps you prepare your return you are still legally responsible for every item on it.

Q — I made several payments on my son's mortgage last year. Can I deduct the part which went for interest and taxes?

A — Even if your son qualifies as your dependent, the law does not allow you any deduction for taxes and interest paid for someone else. Only if the mortgage was in your name, with any deduction be allowed. Then you may deduct the portion of the payments representing real estate taxes and interest when you itemize your deductions.

Q — I was out of a job for a month or so last year and collected state unemployment benefits. Do I declare them as income?

A — No, state unemployment benefits are not taxable and do not have to be reported as income.

Q — I sent my ex-wife $150 a month to support our two children. Can I deduct these payments on my tax return?

A — If the $150 a month is designated as child support, it is not deductible. But, alimony payments would be deductible by you.

Q — I lost the W-2 form I received from my summer job. What should I do?

A — Contact your employer and ask him for another copy.

Q — My niece is now living with me after graduating from college. Will this entitle me to use the head of household rates when I file my tax return?

A — Unless you are also entitled to claim your niece as a dependent, the fact that you maintained a household for her does not meet the law's requirements for using the head of household tax rates. The 1960 instruction booklet has more details on this provision of the law.

Q — I cashed in some U.S. savings bonds last year. How do I figure what I should report as interest on them?

A — Report as interest the difference between what you paid for the bonds, the issue price, and what you received when you turned them in. Some cash basis taxpayers elect to report the interest earned each year on their bonds rather than all at once when they redeem the bonds. Either way of reporting this interest income is acceptable.

Q — I had problems getting my refund last year. What should I do to avoid similar trouble this year?

A — File a complete, accurate return. If you do, the time it takes to issue your refund will be

Questions & Answers

Q — I am attending school under the G.I. Bill and will be married next month. But I won't be able to submit a marriage certificate until two weeks after my marriage. Should I call the VA and report the date of my marriage before then?

A — Yes. Call a VA contact representative and ask him to prepare a report which will establish the date of your marriage. When you submit a marriage certificate later, your increased allowance will be effective from the date of your first notice. The same procedure may be followed if you have a child while attending school.

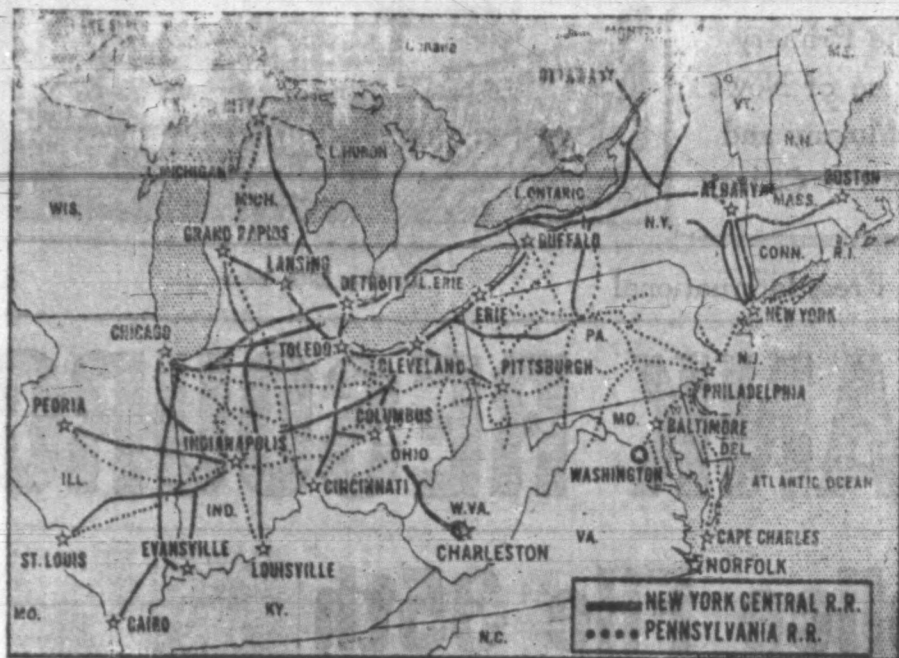

Q — I have a G.I. loan with a 6 per cent interest rate. If the G.I. loan interest rate should be lowered in the future, will my interest be reduced also?

A — No. On the other hand, your established 6 per cent interest rate will not be increased should the G.I. loan interest rate be increased.

Q — Can the VA increase my pension award because of the rising cost of living expenses?

A — No. The rate of pension payments is set by law. Present law does not provide automatic changes which correspond with the cost of living.

Retardation

Covers A Wide Field

This is the first in a series of three articles on Mental Retardation, a Community Responsibility, sponsored by the Zeta Department of the Murray Woman's Club and the local Mental Health Center. Society as a whole must face the fact that 2% of the total population is mentally retarded and that mental retardation can occur in any family. It is no respecter of race, creed, or economic status. Programs for the retarded, therefore, become a community responsibility which requires total community action.

Mental retardation is a broad subject covering many classifications, types and categories; vast differences in behavior and capabilities; and extreme difference in social implications in terms of the mentally retarded and his family. Mental retardation is not a disease but a condition. The American Association on Mental Deficiency defines it as subaverage intellectual functioning which originates during the developmental period and is associated with impairment in adaptive behavior. The individual follows the same pattern of human growth and development as other but a slower pace. He can think, learn, and in many instances be trained to become totally or partially independent. His problem hinges around the fact that he cannot think as fast, abstractly, or learn as quickly as his chronic age peers. For many years the retarded were hidden away and a family with a retarded child was faced with tremendous feelings of inadequacy in trying to deal with an impossible situation. This is no longer true. Thanks to the current interest in the retarded, we are passing through a period of reawakening in terms of a more knowledgeable society. No longer must these children be hidden away in the home or institution. Most of them can be accepted in the community as individuals with personal dignity and worth who can contribute their share to society even though in a small way. Community programs must be planned on the basis of the needs of the individuals involved.

The next article will deal with the three intellectual categories to be considered in this planning. For more information on Mental Retardation and services available, call Mrs. Bailey at the local Mental Health Center phone 783-6622, or Mrs. Billie Downing at Murray State University.

Community development is an outgrowth of water resources development. Studies indicate that the values of real estate, improvements and equipment on Old Hickory Lake have grown from around $11 million in 1955 to more than $111 million.

Open wide and say ah.

Surprise:

You thought you were going to see a roomy, homely Volkswagen station wagon. But it's a new kind of roomy, homely Volkswagen station wagon.

To begin with, getting in is easier: the front doors are lower and wider. And with the side door we've achieved a milestone in station wagon door design. It slides.

Once inside, you might even think you're in a normal car. Everything's padded. Including the dashboard, visors, and the armrests. Besides looking like a car, we've improved the suspension so it even rides like a car.

There are bucket seats up front. And where most cars have something called a console, the new box has an aisle. If the mood should strike you, you can walk the length of the box.

So when you look inside the new box expect to be pleasantly surprised. But not overwhelmed. Because as boxes go, our station wagon is now pretty fancy.

But as station wagons go, it's still a box.

Producers Of Pork Warned On Handling

Pork producers are urged to take precautions in purchase, transportation, and use of breeding stock.

According to Charles W. Scher, Area Extension Swine Specialist, many swine diseases such as T.G.E., swine flu and pneumonia are prevalent during the winter months. For this reason we should practice extreme caution in introducing new animals into the herd.

Some precautions that should be taken are:

1. Purchase breeding stock only from healthy herds.

2. Should have negative blood test for brucella and leptospirosis.

3. Transportation — a clean, disinfected truck; b. straw bedding; c. wind-break and cover; d. protect from injury; e. separate strange animals.

4. Isolation — Newly purchased breeding stock should remain isolated from the present herd for 5-6 weeks to allow for incubation time of any disease that may have not been detected and to let the new animals become acclimated to their new home.

5. Housing — The housing should be dry and free of dust and drafts. A 15-20 square foot bedded sleeping area is recommended. These facilities should be ready before the animals are purchased.

6. Feeding — Newly purchased animals should be given 4-5 pounds per day of a 14-15 percent ration containing a high level of antibiotics.

7. Use — A boar should not be used at all during the first six weeks on the farm. He should not be used at all before he is eight months of age and then on only 2 or 3 sows per week.

Racers Meet Raiders On January 29, Away; Lead OVC By Full Game

The Murray State Racers, who maintained their Ohio Valley Conference lead with a 91-52 win over Austin Peay Saturday, will take a week's break for final examination before resuming competition Jan. 29 at Middle Tennessee.

The Racers hold a full-game lead in the league with their 5-1 record. Eastern Kentucky, East Tennessee, and Morehead are tied for second with 3-1 records. Perhaps the most significant factor in the win over Austin Peay was that it was the second conference win for the Racers on the road. Road wins have been scarce and probably will continue to be in the evenly balanced OVC this season.

This play may haunt the Racers who play four of their next five games on the road. Following the Middle game, they will play Austin Peay at Murray, Feb. 3; Western Kentucky at Bowling Green, Feb. 5; Eastern at Richmond, Feb. 10; and Morehead, Feb. 12, before returning to Murray for their last three games.

"Our schedule the next three weeks is the toughest in the league," Coach Cal Luther said. "But if we can hold our own in these next five games, we'll be in good shape to win the championship."

Luther continued to praise his team's hustle, effort, and defense after the Austin Peay game. "They give 100 percent every game," he said.

and a team that does that is awfully hard to beat. All their games are great team efforts — our balanced scoring shows that our defense can really be fierce."

Sophomore Claude Varden scored 31 points against Austin Peay for the most prolific scoring effort of any Racer this season and to establish himself as a strong candidate for the league's "Sophomore of the Year." Varden, who missed the first seven Murray games because of an ankle injury, has begun to live up to his potential, according to Luther. He had averaged 20 points a game if he had played all season, Luther said.

Don Panneman, another Racer sophomore, turned in a spectacular performance. The defensive ace held Austin Peay's Howard Wright, the OVC's leading scorer, to 14 points, his lowest total of the season. Panneman also tallied 15 points of his own with six field goals in seven attempts and one of one free throw.

Varden's big night gave him the highest scoring average of any Racer—16.1. Tom Moran is averaging 15.7, Dick Cunningham and Billy Chamberlain 15.3, and Panneman 14. Cunningham is averaging 17.9 rebounds to lead the team in that department. Varden is the leading percentage shooter from the field, having hit 56 of 110 attempts, and Ron Rossman the top free throw shooter with 33 in 37 attempts.

The Racers have averaged 78.3 points and 53 rebounds a game to their opponents' 72.1 points and 40.1 rebounds. They have hit 44.2 percent of their field goal attempts and 65.3 percent of their free throw attempts.

Commissioner Pete Ronelle announced that the drafting will begin at 10 a. m. EST next Tuesday with a total of 482 players to be selected by 25 teams on 17 rounds.

Generally, the teams draft in the inverse order of their 1967 finish and the whole idea of the draft is to strengthen the weaker teams.

But there are several changes in the order because of trades. Minnesota gets the first pick on the first round because of the bonus pick it received in the Free Agent deal a year ago. The Vikings will also grab the seventh player to be chosen as their regular selection. With two of the first seven selections, Minnesota, specific strategies and 11 needs bolstering after last year's 3-3 record.

The new Cincinnati Bengals will pick second with Atlanta third and the San Diego Chargers getting the fourth pick because of the Steve Tena trade with Denver.

The Packers got New Orleans' first draft choice after Jim Taylor played out his option and signed with the Saints and so will pick fifth.

The Packers will also make the first round choice at the end of the first round.

Four other teams besides Green Bay and Minnesota—San Diego, Miami, Detroit and Kansas City—get two first round picks. San Diego chooses fourth and 19th, Detroit 11th and 24th, Miami eighth and 27th and Kansas City 19th and 22nd.

Joe Medwick Is Proud Member Of Hall Of Fame

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Medwick, the "longest slump" in baseball history, was elected to the National Baseball Hall of Fame today.

Medwick, who played for the Cardinals, Brooklyn Dodgers, New York Giants and Boston Braves between 1932 and 1947, compiled a lifetime .294 batting average. He was a nine-time All-Star.

Commissioner Pete Ronelle announced that the drafting will begin at 10 a. m. EST next Tuesday with a total of 482 players to be selected by 25 teams on 17 rounds.

Generally, the teams draft in the inverse order of their 1967 finish and the whole idea of the draft is to strengthen the weaker teams.

But there are several changes in the order because of trades. Minnesota gets the first pick on the first round because of the bonus pick it received in the Free Agent deal a year ago. The Vikings will also grab the seventh player to be chosen as their regular selection. With two of the first seven selections, Minnesota, specific strategies and 11 needs bolstering after last year's 3-3 record.

The new Cincinnati Bengals will pick second with Atlanta third and the San Diego Chargers getting the fourth pick because of the Steve Tena trade with Denver.

The Packers got New Orleans' first draft choice after Jim Taylor played out his option and signed with the Saints and so will pick fifth.

The Packers will also make the first round choice at the end of the first round.

Four other teams besides Green Bay and Minnesota—San Diego, Miami, Detroit and Kansas City—get two first round picks. San Diego chooses fourth and 19th, Detroit 11th and 24th, Miami eighth and 27th and Kansas City 19th and 22nd.

Solon Suggests Uniform Emergency Phone Numbers For Every Community

By MARGUERITE DAVIS
WASHINGTON, D.C. — Rep. J. Edward Roush, D-Ind., thinks there is a lesson to be learned from the Barstow, Calif., child who asked her father to stop the noise of a thunder storm.

"You'll have to speak to the Lord about that," he replied. So she went to the telephone and dialed H-E-A-V-E-N. She wasn't old enough to know a second "E" was required in that familiar word, but she reached a sympathetic adult who soothed the young caller.

Roush believes that when adults need help, they should be able to dial a familiar number and that it should be the same in New York City as in Davenport, Iowa, or Portland, Ore.

His bill to set up such a system hasn't been given a hearing yet by the House Commerce Committee, but it clearly has struck a responsive chord with citizens throughout the land. Most police and fire chiefs who have commented also endorse the idea.

What the Indiana congressman has in mind is this: There should be a uniform set of simple emergency numbers which would be the same for every community in the country. This universal three or four digit number would become inactive for anyone seeking help from the police or fire department, even if he were a total stranger in a city.

Roush observes that every year a greater and greater number of Americans are moving with increasing frequency from city to city — from Boston to Oakland, from Dallas to Bangor, Me.

On arrival at their new home, the newcomers often find themselves with a different system of emergency phone numbers.

Roush is convinced that this hodge-podge system of emergency numbers having its own emergency dialing can cost precious life or death seconds while a panicky caller gropes for the right number.

If the number were the same in the new home as the old, this dilemma would not occur, he argues.

Some objections have been raised to Roush's proposal. Some cite difficulties which might arise in metropolitan areas where many suburbs maintain their own police and fire departments. A mistake in dialing the call for help to the wrong community could result in serious delay, they say.

Roush counters that to solve this in a place like Los Angeles, a single number could connect the caller with an emergency expert who would be less likely to err in dispatching aid than would a telephone operator.

It is his response to opponents who argue that since the early days of manual service, persons in need of help have been able to dial a number and get help. He says that the system of emergency numbers is a simple matter of dialing a number and getting help.

Those attending were: Mrs. Kathryn Kyle, Mrs. Robert Walters, Mrs. Bill McCain, Mrs. Bobby Joe Smith, Mrs. Ronnie Silvers, Miss Diana Reine, Miss Cheryl Hill, Miss Lou Edwards, Miss Pamela Young, Mrs. Marie Thelert, Mrs. Bill Knight, the hostesses, the honoree, and her mother.

Those who were unable to attend but sending gifts were: Mrs. Frank Schlette, Miss Barbara Dulin, Mrs. Aiche Oliver, Mrs. J. D. Grogan, Mrs. Jean El Johnson, Mrs. James Hooper, and Miss Justice Thornton.

Mom Makes Serious Financial 'Goof'

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband died 10 years ago and left me a small estate which was to be security for my old age. Well, I have three daughters and one son. They are all married and have families. The girls have good, hard-working husbands, but my son has had such hard luck. He drops out of high school so he can't get a very good-paying job.

My daughters' children have nice clothes, music lessons, good bicycles, and things like that, so naturally, my son feels that his kids are entitled to have it as good as their cousins, so he has asked me to help him out. I have helped him as much as I can, and now all my money is used up.

My son can't pay me back, so now I have to go to live with someone. I am, of course, a mother and I have a son. I am a mother and I have a son. I am a mother and I have a son.

DEAR ABBY: I feel I must talk to someone about a problem that has been on my mind for a long time. It's my mentally retarded niece, I'll call "Lucy."

She can't go to school with normal children. Lucy's mother has taken a day time job outside the home. Not that she needs the money, she says the child gets on her nerves and she has to get away. This mother will put Lucy off on anyone who will keep her.

DEAR ABBY: Your son seems more and more like a LUCKY than a hard worker. You are foolish to have given your "security" money to your son. His children were "entitled" to only what their father was able to provide for them. See your daughter the truth, and take your medicine.

Flower Power Is Discovered By Milliners

By GAY FAULEY
UPI Women's Editor
NEW YORK, Jan. 23 — The millinery designers have discovered flower power.

Or, maybe rediscovered is a better term, since the industry almost has used flowers to ornament women's heads. But for the past few seasons for spring and summer, the flowers faded from the scene and the hats—when women wore them—became stark little geometric shapes or scarves.

In winter, it was the full hat, real or fake, that took over almost totally.

But all this has changed for spring '68. Fashion in general is going a reverse course, with clothing fitted again, curly hair on its way back, and a soft and feminine, rather than harsh, look taking over. The result shows rapidly in the new millinery.

All Abloom
Flowers are abloom again, but with a difference from those all-around hats of a few springs ago when headgear looked like a flower pot.

The new accent is on floral trim. There's new accent also on brims. Lucy. That you would write shows you have a heart and a conscience. You say Lucy can't go to school with "normal" children. I hope she is going to a school for retarded children. If not, please call your local Board of Education for information on such schools, and see that Lucy attends. God bless you.

DEAR CONCERNED: Yes, take brims are wide, some of them draping like the big floppy face-draggers of what used to be called the "Madonna party" look.

The return of the flowers showed throughout the Millinery Institute of America's semi-annual show Sunday for visiting reporters.

"Miss Mary," the custom milliner for more than three decades, observed, "This spring the florals ought to bring the industry out of the doldrums."

Miss Mary's florals featured giant red poppies covering the ears and much of the cheek.

The more than 30 firms participating in the show drew their romantic inspiration from the nostalgia of the 1930's and the "Bonnie and Clyde" movie based on that era, from the ante-bellum days aptly pictured in "Gone with the Wind," from the Gibson girl beauties of the 1890's.

Mr. John called his big brimmed numbers "plantation" hats, from the flutters of the old South. Several designers copied the be-riets, and in all sizes, from the Bonnie-Clyde era, some of them done in red or turquoise straw, others in stiffened fabrics.

The "gentle" lines of the Gibson girl-chapeaux showed in portrait brims, in boaters and, in sailors. The deal showed a sailor in black patent.

Designers used all sorts of approaches to the florals. Bob Green with the firm of Irene rimmed entire crowns of face-framing numbers with flowers in assorted colors.

Designer Anello at Emme covered pillboxes with flowers and carried them on into a brim finished off with sequin bow. Designer Archie Eason featured flower-covered back-of-head hats with the flowers continuing down the back like an oriental queue.

Chanda did a version of the shako in violets which were repeated in a parrot box. Frank Olive did a million.

EUROPE'S TOP social event of the late winter must be the Feb. 3 marriage of this pair, Princess Benedikte of Denmark and Prince Richard Zu Sayn-Wittgenstein. She is the second daughter of King Frederik and Queen Ingrid of Denmark.

showed a squared-off little straw with a cluster of straw, Shirley Temple "curls" and yellow flowers streaming from the back.

Emme did a white straw version of the Aussie hat, which she called "the cavalier." With one side of the wide brim turned down, the other turned up and fastened with a cluster of assorted flowers. Even the copies of the man's classic fedora came with floral trim.

Newest project under construction in the Nashville District, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, is the Laurel River Project located in the headwaters of the Cumberland River Basin. Initial phase of the work, construction of diversion in violets which were repeated in a parrot box. Frank Olive did a million.

TRAINING OF

driver education had fifty per cent fewer accidents and much less serious ones. Safety experts are generally agreed that a good driver education program of 30 hours classroom work and six hours driving experience is comparable to five years actual driving experience.

It was also brought to the House's attention that of the 400 students in the three Calloway high schools this year who are approaching the age of 16, only a maximum of 45 could enroll in driver education. Calloway High at present does not have a program. Murray High is limited to 15 students and University High has about twice that number.

Students must have a driver's permit before participating in the driver education program. The permit is issued by the state on the applicant's sixteenth birthday.

Proposed legislation now pending under House Bill No. 66 would create a special driver's permit to be issued at age fifteen and add fifty cents to the present $2.00 fee for drivers licenses. The special permit would allow students to participate in driver education programs before reaching the age they could actually obtain drivers licenses. The additional fee would provide an estimated $375,000 to be matched on a dollar per dollar basis by funds available under the National Safety Act. These funds would enable the state to institute driver education programs for all of its high schools.

Visitors at the meeting were Fins Griffin, a guest of Lester Nanny, Dr. Jerry Henderson, a guest of Bob Ray, and N. T. Bond, a guest of Leslie Putnam. New Lions Bill Brittain, Best Goodie, Charles Lammier and Dub Russell received their membership kits in a presentation by past president Vernon Anderson.

CAIRO 239 — Israel has returned all Egyptian soldiers taken prisoner during the June 5-10 Middle East war, the authoritative newspaper Al Ahran said today. The report, which was the first official word given to the Egyptian public by the Egyptian and the Israeli-Egyptian Red Cross negotiations that brought it about, did not say how many prisoners were involved.

territorial waters to carry out espionage activities.

Forced Into Port The Pueblo was seized off the coast of North Korea Tuesday and forced into the port at Wonsan by four North Korean patrol boats while two MIGs circled overhead. The North Korean government has flatly rejected American demands that it free the ship.

The State Department's press spokesman, Robert J. McCloskey, insisted anew that the Pueblo was outside the 12-mile territorial limit claimed by North Korea. He said it was absolutely clear that the ship was in international waters.

White House Press Secretary George Christian admitted that diplomatic efforts "thus far have not amounted to much." But he said it is "still the hope of this government that the matter can be resolved through diplomatic channels."

Declines To Speculate

He declined to speculate on what military action might be taken should the diplomatic impasse continue.

The administration, however, left open the possibility that the United States might eventually have to take military action to recover the ship and the crew.

When asked whether the United States was considering military action, State Department spokesman Robert McCloskey said, "That is a subject I will not discuss."

Rusk, questioned whether he agreed with some congressional assessments that seizure of the Pueblo was an act of war, replied: "I would not object to interpreting it as an act of war in terms of the categories of acts that could be so construed."

President Johnson himself remained largely preoccupied with the ship incident which was expected to figure prominently in an afternoon meeting of the National Security Council.

Rusk spoke to reporters on Capitol Hill after testifying nearly three hours before the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

His word of caution to the Communist regime in Pyongyang came as some members of Congress warned against any precipitate U.S. action to rescue the Pueblo, an intelligence ship.

A leading Vietnam war hawk, Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., was one of those cautioning against "rash action."

"We must not rush pell mell into the disaster of World War III," said Stennis.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield also cautioned that "we ought to keep our ships on and not go off half-cocked."

North Korea, in a broadcast monitored in Tokyo, charged, meanwhile, that Cmdr. Lloyd Mark Bucher, skipper of the Pueblo, had confessed to carrying out espionage activities in North Korea's territorial waters.

The Communist broadcast quoted Bucher as admitting he had been ordered to conduct "military espionage activities . . . in the offshore areas and coastal areas of the Democratic Republic of Korea."

NATIONAL GUARD PROPERTIES

The official properties of the Kentucky National Guard are worth about $15 million, not including the military equipment which is owned by the Federal Government.

PROF TO MOP—Noel Brann, 30, shown at the University of Maryland, College Park, where he is an assistant professor of history, is about to wind up with a janitorial job at the University of Kansas Medical Center. He is registered as a conscientious objector, and the janitor job was assigned by his Res. Nev., draft board. He turned in his draft card in October, then asked for its return.

A startling modern detective thriller GIDEON'S WRATH

by J. J. MARRIC (John Creasey)

From the novel published by Harper & Row; copyright © 1967, by John Creasey; distributed by King Features Syndicate.

CHAPTER 23

THE man who had telephoned the first message was also, for Marriott, who described himself as a Professor of Languages and who as such had once given private tuition. That was some time ago, before he had quitted his father's money. He was in fact a millionaire, although few were aware of it; so many of his stocks were managed by trusts, so many of his properties were owned under different names. He had for many years managed his affairs skillfully and successfully, making more and more money, although its amassing appeared to give him little pleasure. He was an ascetic. He was also a man with a mission. And he was a man who had visions.

A great many men have visions; only those who believe them to be inspired are likely to be dangerous. Marriott was absolutely convinced of that inspiration; he felt that no vision would ever direct him along the wrong path.

For many years he had worshipped in the ordinary Anglican church, a member but not active in his membership or one of whom much notice was taken. Mr. Marriott, it was said, preferred to keep himself to himself. He did not resent this, but it did nothing to endear him to his fellow members.

During the war the church received a direct hit and was utterly destroyed. The parishioners, such as were left at home, built a wooden altar, made a wooden altar, fashioned a wooden cross, and worshipped there. The simplicity of the place of worship and the friendliness of the people did a thing which was unique in Marriott's experience. Together, they warmed him. He actually began to like people and to stop thinking that all they wanted was his money.

He had never known happiness in the true sense of the word—he had never been in love, although he had the normal, occasional relationships of the average man—but during the wooden hut period, he had been nearer to happiness and contentment than ever before. After a while, however, some of the other church members had become restless, wanting something more materially worthy in which to worship, and a rebuilding fund had been launched.

Marriott had subscribed cautiously; he had even agreed to serve on the Rebuilding Fund committee.

Before long, arguments had started. The target kept higher, more and more expensive, was incurred on gold, on silver, on rich embroideries, on rare woods. Gradually, the fund drove away all thought of worship. There were quarrels, there were jealousies. There were refusals to give to deserving charities. There was even quarrelling about ritual.

Hector Marriott resigned, simply, and without verbal protest.

The time came when the new church was built and the first service was held; and in spite of his doubts Marriott had attended. That was the day when, in a church notice, these words appeared under the name of the vicar:

"I have good news for all of us, especially for those who have labored so long in preparation for this beautiful new House of God. The site on which our old church stood and where our but now stands has been sold to very great advantage. We shall now be able to adorn the altar and the pulpit, the choir stalls and the windows, in a way which is worthy of their high purpose."

Hector Marriott, unaware that he was already mad, left the church determined never to set foot in it or in any other so-called place of worship again. Next day passing the end of the street, he saw a cloud of dust or smoke and went to see what it was. The little hut which he had so loved, not knowing that it was love, was a smoke-filled ruin, the sides split, the roof off, the door torn from its hinges. The demolishing contractors on the site simply stated, "It wasn't worth saving—we had to blow it up."

Hatred overflowed in Hector Marriott's heart.

Still not knowing—to his last day not knowing—that he was insane, he had gone home and sunk to his knees, calling upon God to strike down the destroyers. And that night, in his dreams, he had had a vision: that the new church itself should be destroyed in the pride of its idolatry.

He began to daydream.

He was an ascetic, he hated war, he did not know the love of a woman or love for a woman. He was a psychopath, he had millions of pounds to do what he liked with—but the only desire he felt was to destroy and eventually destroy what others. In the name of worship, had built up.

How?

He waited for a "vision" and one came, in a dream, he saw himself another men standing amidst the smoke-stained debris of a church. So he must not do this alone. He did not feel any sense of urgency, a pity one of purpose, and so he studied books and records of other religious rebels, especially those who had rebelled against the pope and a ceremony of the church, from Luther to Billy Graham across the centuries and across the world. A study of strange and out-of-the-way religions began to "inspire" him, and he went to services of little-known sects, even crossing the Atlantic in his search for information that would nourish his vision.

There he found the sex sects, the worshippers of Baal and of Osiris. He found the Doukhobors who wrestled—as he wrestled—with the spirit, so as to purify its doctrines, and who flaged themselves and each other in their lust for purification. He felt drawn toward the Shakers in their belief in a celibacy which would destroy themselves, toward the Amnians who had the same horror of sex. He was revolted by the cult of voodoo, half-Christian, half black magic, with horrid and terrifying superstitions. He visited the hills of Tennessee where the snake worshippers prayed in the name of Christ; he traversed the high mountains of Utah into the hinterland where some still practiced polygamy, convinced it was the will of God because the Prophet, Joseph Smith, had seen a vision—as he, Hector Marriott, had seen visions.

But his were true.

In the course of these travels and meetings he found other men who had the same ascetic tendencies he himself, the same resentment toward the wealth of the churches, the finery, the jewelry, the objects d'art. In time he found himself their leader, for he possessed those two great things which move mountains—wealth and faith in his destiny.

His sect evolved slowly. A chance phrase which Marriott himself used led to their adoption of the name. The Simple Brethren. The main difference between them and other Christian sects was the fact that they were a secret society, arm that they were all pledged to destroy and destroy idolatry, pomp and show, and all but the simplest of altars and buildings. In the beginning, the word "idolatry" was not used literally, although in Marriott's mind there was always a vision of the ultimate destruction he and others were to bring about one day—and for that day he felt an inexorable lust and yearning. But there was no hurry, no sense of urgency; the time must be ripe, and the perpetrators prepared.

The Committee of Three met to form its plans for more destruction.

There Is No Rest For The Weary. Even Broke His Beads

BOEHLINGEN, Germany (AP) — Pvt. James Edward Manly was one unhappy hippie today. Not only was he constantly receiving "hostile brain waves" from fellow GIs, but they even have broken his head.

After less than two months volunteer service with the U. S. Army in Germany, the 18-year-old advocate of "flower power" wants to flee the military scene and return to the love children in San Francisco.

"It's the hostile brain waves, I constantly receive from the GIs around me," Manly, from Kirkland, Wash., told the Overseas Weekly, a private newspaper for the U. S. military in Europe.

"I'm used to mental vibrations of love and peace from people. The guys in my room grabbed my string of beads and broke it. They know I won't fight or get mad, so they're always trying to provoke me. I don't think I can stand this strain much longer."

The "love" beads that Manly wears under his Army fatigues are one of the unimilitary customs his buddies at HQ Company, 7th Army Support Command find hard to take.

His habit of sitting cross-legged, Viet fashion, on the barracks floor while staring at tear-shaped bangles of transparent purple plastic also hasn't helped him find friends in his squad.

The slim, 5-foot 6-inch "flower child" has other peculiarities which his officers have given in to. He cooks his own once-daily meal of brown rice, buckwheat and seaweed and boils his own tea "in the company mess hall."

"The green tea also doubles for smoking. When he lights up one of his self-rolled cigarettes, 'every-one thinks he's marijuana. Sometimes I wish it was.'"

Manly says his diet, supplemented by lettuce and fresh milk he accepts from the Army, is sent to him by a sister every month from Francisco.

His pledge to the Overseas Weekly that he has not "touched a piece of meat in two years," was disputed by the unit spokesman.

"At the evening meal Jan. 8 he was observed by Headquarters Company Commander Lt. Lee Hoffecker taking a generous helping of sparses," the spokesman said.

Informed of this accusation, the hippie-soldier replied with a sigh, "I figured they'd try to discredit me."

Hoffecker said he has turned down Manly's request for discharge because he thinks he can "rehabilitate" the hippie into a regular soldier.

Manly's parents live at 429 West, Kirkland.

Fresh Air And Black Coffee Won't Sober Up

By JOSEPH L. MYLER

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you come down drunk, neither fresh air nor black coffee will sober you up, according to a couple of Georgetown University scientists.

"The experimental evidence shows," according to Theodore Kopsman and Gertrude Mueggenwirth, "that neither home remedy is effective against the insatiable form of alcohol poisoning called drunkenness."

Well, what do you do for a person who has become what is popularly known as drunk, stiff, soiled, booted, potted, tight, stoned or smashed?

"The afflicted person," said Mrs. Kopsman and Mueggenwirth, "should be allowed to sleep it off."

By and large, however, noisy drunks should not be given sleeping pills. On top of a large load of alcohol, sleeping drugs "could lead to death."

The pharmacologists' opinions were included in a chapter of alcoholism written for a soon to be published book, "Topics of Medical Chemistry."

In addition to debunking age-old folk notions about the sobering effect of black coffee and fresh air, the two scientists made these other observations:

—Drunks who are chronic alcoholics should be turned over to a doctor.

—Some scientists hold "it is quicker and easier to become addicted to alcohol than any other drug, including barbiturates and heroin." One reason is that alcohol is easier to come by.

—Alcohol tends to accumulate in the blood stream more rapidly than most other drugs. This accumulation is what makes drinkers drunk.

—Persons taking tranquilizing drugs such as meprobamate avoid alcohol. They tend to get drunk quicker than others.

LSO HOAXER—Blind Dr. Norman Yoder (above) is under suspension from his $20,600 post as commissioner for the blind in Pennsylvania on discovery that his sensational story of six college students being blinded by looking at the Sun during an LSD "trip" was a hoax. Dr. Yoder, 53, has submitted to psychiatric treatment.

DESCENT ENGINE—This is the descent rocket engine of the Lunar Module, being checked at TRW's Redondo Beach, Calif., plant before the Cape Kennedy blastoff for the Apollo test. It can be throttled up or down when the time comes in 1969, to land 16-ton manned Module on the Moon.
